

CALL FOR PAPERS

SOCIETY FOR INSTITUTIONAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL ECONOMICS

The Society for Institutional and Organizational Economics (SIOE) studies institutions and organizations, largely but not entirely from the perspective of economics. In 2020, SIOE will hold its annual conference at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), beginning late afternoon on Thursday, June 18, and concluding with a gala dinner on Saturday, June 20.

The conference will include two plenary sessions. Late Thursday afternoon, June 18, there will be a panel of past presidents of SIOE (and of its predecessor, ISNIE) discussing “2020 Hindsight: What Would Coase, North, Ostrom, and Williamson Want Us Not to Forget?” and late Friday afternoon, June 19, there will be a keynote address by Melissa Dell (Harvard).

The broad topic areas for submissions are:

1. Governance within organizations
2. Governance between organizations
3. Polycentric governance
4. Institutions and organizations in the public sector
5. Institutions and organizations in political economy
6. Culture and institutions
7. Institutions and organizations in economic development and growth
8. Law, in the study of institutions or organizations
